

Karolina Iwa

After graduating from the university I understood that formal education was the wrong place for me. Instead, I decided to set off on a journey and meet people, collect experiences and knowledge and reflect over self-organisation, creative processes and incidental learning (the "every-day learning"). This is keeping me constantly inspired with my job and on the move a lot.

Karolina Iwa is a process facilitator, trainer and intercultural psychologist since 2003. Comes from Poland (Silesia), lives in Berlin, works internationally.